About the Capacity Building Programme

For any successful academician, systematic and regular knowledge updating is mandatory to upgrade oneself as well as to share same with students who are the future assets of humanity. Hence, any Capacity Building Programme intends for the participants to build and enhance existing knowledge/ skills. CBP enables one academician to get engaged in the "process of adaptation to changes via continuous learning". Research comprises of elaborated process of thinking, analyzing, writing and continuous knowledge updating. Further, researches in social sciences are unique in the perspectives of theoretical background, methodological perspectives, data collection and analysis. Hence, providing systematic and continuous cum orientation to young faculty members, is unavoidable. Art of doing research and training are deemed necessary for any high quality research in Social Sciences. Even though the philosophy of research may be common, but different social science subjects have evolved its own research procedures and theoretical frameworks. Further, in prevailing academic environment, interdisciplinary researches are of utmost importance and one academician who intends to do such interdisciplinary research need to get exposure about the methodologies and strategies of research of other subjects apart from which they were already trained. Thus, refining the research skills in other subjects also became a mandatory fact to academicians/ faculties for quality interdisciplinary researches.
